The Loops -

For many years steam locomotives on the main line of the C P R resembled across these stone pillars.

Construction of the R.R. was a constant struggle! steep sided valleys + cascading rivers required an intricate series of loops bridges along the line

The loops contained curves equal equal to several complete circles and allowed the railway to climb out of Rogers Pass at a reasonable grade

Loop Brook. was first bridged at two points in 1885 - In 190⁸ The original wooden trestles were replaced by steel spans resting on stone pillars. Some later the C P R abandoned this part of this line.

The stone pillars of Loop Brook
Valley were left as monuments to the skill of our pioneers
